Dear Families,

This week at Stambridge we have been looking at and demonstrating resilience. Octopus Class has been learning about how people with a hearing impairment cope. The children guided each other and gave instructions without being able to talk. Afterwards they discussed the problems they faced and how they felt. Meanwhile, Nautilus class has been looking at inspiring athletes from history and seeing how they have been resilient in the face of illness and prejudice. They then wrote letter to the Governor of the Bank of England giving reasons why an athlete should be chosen to be printed onto a new banknote.

Sea Turtle Class have been showing resilience when writing some fantastic stories about The Paper Bag Princess. Year 2 have persevered as they mastered solving problems using multiplication and division, including some with remainders! Crab Class has also persevered when writing postcards about their imaginary holidays and when doing their halving.

Enjoy the three day weekend.
